HOMEOWNER'S GUIDE for HOUSE SITTERS the Art of house sitting

Homeowner's Guide For House Sitters

As a homeowner, providing a comprehensive guide for house sitters is crucial to ensure they have all the necessary information to care for your property and pets effectively

A well-prepared guide can help minimise confusion, address potential concerns, and ensure a smooth house sitting experience for everyone involved. Here's how you can create an informative and user-friendly guide

Property Overview

Provide a detailed description of your property, including its layout, number of rooms, and any unique features or quirks

Include instructions for operating important systems, such as heating, cooling, security alarms, and irrigation systems

List any "quirks" of the house that a sitter should know. This could include window а that needs special handling, a tricky light shower switch, with or а а temperature quirk. These small details can help the sitter navigate the home more easily

Highlight any areas that are offlimits or require special attention

Pet Care Instructions

Provide detailed information about each pet, including their names, ages, breeds, and any medical conditions or special needs

Outline feeding schedules, portion sizes, and preferred foods or treats. Include instructions for administering any medications or handling specific behavioural issues

Provide contact information for your veterinarian and nearby emergency pet clinics

Specify any allergies or sensitivities your pets may have to ensure their well-being during your absence

List any emergency contacts who can assist with pet care if needed

Appliances and Utilities

Provide clear instructions for using major appliances, such as the oven, dishwasher, washing machine, and dryer

Include information about waste disposal, recycling, and any specific instructions for your area

Provide contact information for utility companies and account details if the house sitter needs to coordinate services during their stay

List the locations of important utility controls, like the main water shut-off valve, circuit breaker box, and gas shut-off. Include basic instructions for resetting tripped breakers or restarting the water heater if needed

House Rules & Agreement

Clearly outline any mutually agreed upon house rules and agreements you have with the house sitter, such as restrictions on smoking, having guests over, or using certain areas of the home

Specify any tasks or responsibilities you have agreed upon with the house sitter to fulfill during their stay, such as checking mail, accepting deliveries, or caring for outdoor spaces

Explain any security measures or routines you'd like maintained Clarify agreements for cleaning and tidying

Home Maintenance

Provide instructions for routine maintenance tasks, such as watering plants, cleaning pools or hot tubs, and caring for lawns or gardens

Include information about any scheduled services, such as lawn care or pool maintenance, that may occur during the house sit

Provide contact details for these service providers and specify if the house sitter needs to be present or take any action during these visits

Outline any regular home maintenance tasks that may need attention, such as changing air filters, checking smoke detectors, or clearing gutters. Specify the frequency of these tasks

Emergency Procedures

Outline procedures for handling emergencies, such as power outages, plumbing issues, or security breaches

Provide contact information for emergency services, including police, fire department, and local hospitals or clinics

Include information about the location of emergency supplies, such as first aid kits, fire extinguishers, and shut-off valves for utilities

Create a simple emergency guide with key contact numbers, locations of safety equipment, and basic instructions for handling common household emergencies

Local Information

Provide a list of nearby amenities, such as grocery stores, pharmacies, restaurants, and entertainment options

Include recommendations for local attractions, parks, or recreational activities that the house sitter may enjoy during their stay

Provide contact information for trusted service providers, such as handymen, locksmiths, or pet groomers, in case their services are needed

Share any neighbourhoodspecific guidelines or customs, such as parking rules, trash collection schedules, or quiet hours, to help the house sitter integrate smoothly

FAQs for HOME OWNERS

Preparation and

Agreement

How do I create a fair house sitting agreement?

Work collaboratively with your house sitter to outline responsibilities, pet care needs, and home maintenance tasks. Be open to discussion and ensure both parties are comfortable with the final agreement

What should I include in the house sitting agreement?

Include details on pet care, plant watering, mail collection, cleaning responsibilities, use of amenities, and any specific house rules. Be clear about what's mutually agreed upon rather than just stating expectations

How much detail should I provide about my home and pets?

Provide as much relevant information as possible. This helps the sitter feel prepared and prevents misunderstandings. Encourage questions and be open to clarifying any points

Should I discuss compensation or expense sharing with the house sitter?

If you expect the sitter to contribute to utilities or if you're offering any form of compensation, discuss this openly before finalizing the agreement. Ensure both parties are clear on any financial arrangements

How should I prepare my home for the house sitter?

Besides cleaning, consider setting aside some space for the sitter's belongings. Discuss any off-limits areas or special instructions for certain parts of your home

What should I know about insurance coverage for house sitters in Australia?

Typically the homeowner's insurance covers loss of the house sitter's belongings in events like fire or theft. Discuss this with your insurance provider to confirm coverage details and inform your house sitter about the protection in place.

Should I inform my insurance company about having a house sitter?

It is recommended to inform your insurance company about having a house sitter to ensure coverage and address any specific requirements or limitations related to house sitting.

How should I handle giving house keys or entrance codes to my house sitter?

Arrange a secure method to transfer keys, such as an in-person handover. For digital locks, create a temporary code for the sitter. Discuss the importance of keeping keys and codes secure, and agree on how they'll be returned or deactivated after the sit.

What precautions should I take regarding spare keys and security systems

Inform your sitter about all entry points and any security systems. Provide clear instructions on arming/disarming alarms. Consider temporarily changing codes for the duration of the sit. Ensure all spare keys are accounted for and inform the sitter of their locations.

:Should I leave emergency contact information

Yes, agree on who the emergency contacts will be (e.g., neighbor, family member, trusted friend) and ensure your sitter has their contact information.

FAQs for HOME OWNERS

Communication and Relationship Management

How can I ensure good communication with my house sitter?

Agree on a communication method and frequency that works for both of you. This could be daily check-ins, weekly updates, or as-needed communication for important matters

What if something changes after we've made an agreement?

If circumstances change or you need to modify the agreement, discuss this with your sitter as soon as possible. Be open to finding mutually acceptable solutions

What if the house sitter raises concerns about certain tasks?

Listen to their concerns openly. Be willing to adjust the agreement if their concerns are reasonable. The goal is to find a mutually comfortable arrangement

How can I show appreciation for my house sitter?

Discuss ways to make their stay comfortable. This could include providing some basic groceries, leaving clear instructions, or offering local recommendations. Remember, a positive house sitting experience benefits both parties

Should I have a backup plan if the sitter can't fulfill the entire house sitting period?

Yes, it's wise to have a contingency plan. Identify a trusted friend, family member, or professional pet sitter who could step in if needed. Discuss this with your primary sitter and include contact information for your backup in the house sitting instructions.

Pro Tip: Create a shared digital document or folder with your house sitter. Use this to store important information, updates, and photos. This can be a great way to maintain clear communication and ensure both parties have easy access to all necessary details throughout the house sit.

How can we prepare unexpected extensions to house sit?

It's wise to have a backup plan for pet sitting. Choose a trusted friend, family member, or professional pet sitter as a contingency. Share backup contact details with your primary sitter and include them in the house sitting instructions.

What if I need to return home earlier than planned?

Discuss this possibility with your sitter beforehand. Agree on a notice period you'll provide if possible. Decide whether the sitter can stay for the originally planned duration or if they'll need to leave. Include this in your agreement to avoid confusion if the situation arises.

How should we handle a situation where the sitter needs to leave temporarily or permanently before the agreed end date?

Create a protocol in your agreement for the sitter's notice, pet care in their absence, backup sitter, or returning home. Address potential reasons for this scenario to set realistic expectations.

Should the agreement cover what happens if I return home early while the sitter is still there?

Before you leave, discuss with the sitter if they are willing to stay until the planned departure date in case you return early. If agreed, decide on sharing arrangements; if not, set a timeframe for them to find other accommodations.

Pro Tip

CONSIDER CREATING AN "EMERGENCY KIT" FOR YOUR HOUSE SITTER. INCLUDE ITEMS LIKE A FIRST AID KIT, FLASHLIGHT, SPARE BATTERIES, AND A LIST OF EMERGENCY CONTACTS (INCLUDING NEIGHBORS, LOCAL VET, AND YOUR PREFERRED HANDYMAN OR PLUMBER). STORE THIS IN AN EASILY ACCESSIBLE LOCATION AND MAKE SURE YOUR SITTER KNOWS WHERE TO FIND IT.

Happy Home, Happy Hearts: Why Agreements Matter

To round out our FAQs, let's chat about the magic of a mutually agreed house sitting agreement. Think of it as the secret sauce for a stress-free experience! When both homeowners and house sitters put their heads together, amazing things happen. You'll avoid those awkward "I thought you meant..." moments, and instead, you'll be on the same page from day one. It's like creating a roadmap for a smooth house sitting journey, where everyone knows the route and the pit stops. Plus, it's a great way to break the ice and start building that all-important trust. So, grab a cuppa, sit down together, and craft an agreement that makes you both smile. After all, happy homeowners and contented sitters make for wagging tails and purring cats!

HEALTH AND CARE PREFERENCES

We look forward to providing loving care for your pet during your absence. To ensure we can offer the best support in all circumstances, we kindly ask you to share any relevant health information and care preferences. This might include your veterinarian's contact details, any ongoing treatments, and your wishes for unexpected health concerns. While we hope such situations don't arise, having this information allows us to act promptly and in accordance with your preferences, just as we would for any family member. Please feel comfortable sharing what you believe is important for your pet's wellbeing. Your trust in us is valued, and we're committed to a positive house-sitting experience for you and your beloved pet.
